Description

Villa Le Rose is a Medici villa commissioned by the Marchese Niccolò Antinori in the 15th century and it remained in the Antinori's possession until the beginning of the last century, when the family sold the property. In the 1980's, Leonardo and Beatrice Ferragamo bought the villa and made it their home. The owners' affection for the Villa motivated them to carry out a restoration project which was completed in 2003.

During the course of the refurbishment, the villa was fitted with all the modern comforts and practicalities while maintaining and enhancing its historical features.

This stunning Villa stands at the end of a great driveway of ancient cypresses. It is built around a courtyard and is surrounded by gardens and olive groves.

Next to the Villa is the Cedar Garden, a sweeping lawn enclosed by high hedges and ancient trees, embellished by antique rose bushes and pietra serena pedestals bearing potted lemon trees, and a 300 year old Lebanese cedar.

The Villa is built on several floors according to the layout typical of aristocratic villas.
