Description

Set atop a hill, this villa commands an enticing panorama of the Tuscan countryside from Volterra all the way to San Gimignano.

Built in the 17th century by order of the Governor of Livorno and Admiral of the Tuscan Navy, Jacopo Inghirami, it was bought and lovingly restored, some years ago, by one of the most famous film producers in Italy. Over the last 40 years, the most noted celebrities of the international cinema industry have been hosted in these rooms.

Surrounded by a magnificent garden graced with centuries-old trees - including a noteworthy Cedar of Lebanon - the complex extends over an area of 7.5 acres and lies just 6 miles from Volterra.

The interior decoration features a combination of precious antique objects, personal mementos and typical Tuscan rustic-style furniture.

There is a glorious swimming pool, private chapel, large cinema, billiard room, casino room and various other games rooms making this property perfect for a large family gathering or a stay-put holiday.

Every single object gives testimony to the glorious history of this storied house - but above all the graciousness of the Lady of the House and her willingness to accommodate and to share the beauty and history of her magnificent home.

Accommodation Details:

This property is composed of three buildings: the MAIN HOUSE, the SCUOLA and the GRANAIO.

The MAIN HOUSE is divided into 4 floors:
